spaces. Photographer Johannes Schwartz documented the artist's ephemeral installations and the existing fixtures and fittings, creating a portrait of the store. Accompanying the visual journey, a series of texts written by Sudhibhasilp, illustrated by Rudy Guedj, provides insight into her research through anecdotal stories and other miscellaneous facts on materials and exhibition design. Shifting between the form of the artist book and the exhibition catalogue 'No thanks, I'm just looking?' stands as the sole remaining document of the event. moved into a house with a garden that requires repairs and know-how with her wife in a Blue town in the middle of a Red state where she now hosts book clubs and makes mason jar salads. This is the bourgeois life of a Hallmark Channel dream. She goes on bad dates with new friends, spends weeks in Los Angeles taking meetings with "tv executives slash amateur astrologers" while being a "cheese fry-eating slightly damp Midwest person," "with neck pain and no cartilage in [her] knees," who still hides past due bills under her pillow. The essays in this collection draw on the raw, hilarious particulars of Irby's new life. Wow, No Thank You. is Irby at her most unflinching, riotous, and relatable.

Through eight humorous essays, Keturah Kendrick chronicles her journey to freedom. She shares the stories of other women who have freed themselves from the narrow definition of what makes a “proper woman.” Spotlighting the cultural bullying that dictates women must become mothers to the expectation that one’s spiritual path follow the traditions of previous generations, Kendrick imagines a world where black women make life choices that center on their needs and desires. She also examines the rising trend of women choosing to remain single and explores how such a choice is the antithesis to the trope of the sorrowful black woman who cannot find a man to grant her the prize of legal partnership. A mixture of memoir and cultural critique, No Thanks uses wit and insight to paint a picture of the twenty-first-century black woman who has unchained herself from what she is supposed to be. A black woman who has given herself permission to be whomever she wants to be.

Just in time for back to school, Joni A. Smith debuts her first children's book, No Thanks for Girls: 7 Ways to Say I'm Beautiful, Strong and Enough, inspired by her mother's award-winning and bestselling, No Thanks: 7 Ways to Say I'll Just Include Myself by L. Michelle Smith. This colorfully-illustrated book is perfect for kids ages 6-10. It's a lesson in self-esteem, courage and confidence as the author shares stories from the backyard, to the classroom, to the playground. You'll meet Sophie as she navigates feeling left out, scared, bullied, not pretty or smart enough while in online and in-person school during the challenges of 2020, and how she worked with family members and other adults to see that she was indeed strong, beautiful and enough. And of course she uses seven positive affirmations and gratitude to do it! Sophie even asks questions at the end of each vignette that can facilitate discussion and critical thinking for parent-child interaction or small group engagement. (Psst... it's age-appropriate personal coaching!) This 34-page eye-catcher is perfect for your student as s/he navigates going back to school.
